Description

DESCRIPTION: This is a wonderful Rolling Moon Oak and Mahogany long case clock, with an eight-day movement on a broken arch brass dial with a rolling moon. The clock is made by Geo. Moyle of Chester. This clock is absolutely perfect for anyone looking for a clock to place straight into their home. If we start with the hood, this has swan necks which are finished with lovely brass pateras. Above the door is beautifully shaped moulding. The door is mahogany cross banded and has a pretty little brass loop. Pretty reeded columns flank the hood door. If we then move down to the trunk it has a lovely shaped fully length shaped door which is cross banded in mahogany. The door is also complete with it's lock and key which is fully working. The door is then flanked by quarter reeded columns. Finally the base has is nicely cross banded in mahogany and is then raised on lovely ogee bracket feet. The dial with makers name of 'Geo. Moyle, Chester', has the four corners adorned with pretty sprandrels. The the centre of the dial is also superbly engraved. The arch contains the moon disk which is beautifully adorned with a galleon, a lovely cottage scene and two moons. The dial is...
