Description

A very lovely oil on canvas depicting people in Victorian costumes outside "The Pleasure Boat Inn" in Hickling, Norfolk. The painting has a French Impressionist feel and is skilfully painted by John Sutton who was a local artist. It is well framed in a gilt gesso frame. It is all over in a very good condition. Circa 1960. The canvas without frame measures 77cm X 51cm. John Sutton John Sutton born in 1935, is a marine and landscape painter. He studied at the Norwich School of Art, and followed by a postgraduate year at the Brighton College of Art. Following a number of years teaching Art, an exhibition in the Assembly House Norwich, where a London art dealer saw his work and subsequently offered him a one man exhibition, allowing him to concentrate on painting full time. Following this there were exhibitions in the USA, mainly Boston and South Carolina. From the 1980's John Sutton's work was held exclusively at the Eaton Gallery in Duke Street, London, which has since closed on the death of the gallery owner. John Sutton's paintings are held in private collections worldwide, his work is also featured in the authoritative reference works, like Denys Brook Hart's "20th...
