Description

This exceptional longcase clock by Edward East features a beautifully designed Walnut veneered case with a sliding hood and an overhanging cornice. The hood is supported by three-quarter and quarter barley twist columns, adorned with gilt-brass Corinthian capitals and bases. Beneath the hood is a long trunk door crafted from 'bookmatched' walnut veneers, framed with a half-round moulded edge. The base of the case is designed with three upright veneered panels, all resting on a plinth, combining classic elegance with striking visual appeal. The clock's 10-inch square brass dial is signed "Eduardus East Londini" in cursive script along the lower edge, flanked by small winged cherub head spandrels. The dial features a narrow silvered Roman chapter ring with an outer Arabic minute track and trident half-hour markers. The finely matted centre includes large subsidiary seconds dial, and the entire dial is securely mounted to the front plate by four latched dial feet. Inside, the movement is supported by five knopped and finned pillars latched to the front plate. The clock operates with an anchor escapement, with bolt-and-shutter, maintaining power. The external countwheel str...
