Description

This exceptional French carriage clock is a true masterpiece of horological craftsmanship, featuring a brass Grande Sonnerie striking and repeating movement with an alarm function. Manufactured by the esteemed J. F. Bautte Et Cie, in collaboration with Rossel Et Fils Sucrs of Geneva, the clock boasts a white enamel dial adorned with Roman numerals, an outer minute track, and a subsidiary seconds dial at the twelve o'clock position. The clock also includes three additional subsidiary dials for the day, date, and alarm, offering a sophisticated array of features. The twin-train movement strikes a bell and operates with a platform lever escapement, ensuring precision timekeeping with a compensated balance. The clock also includes a three-position strike selection lever in the base, allowing the user to choose the desired strike mode. The backplate is signed, further enhancing the clock's provenance. The beautifully crafted gilt brass gorge case is complemented by a swing handle, making it both a functional and visually striking timepiece. Additionally, this remarkable carriage clock comes complete with its original travel case, making it as practical for travel as it is ex...
