Description

An Edwardian mahogany and brass bound coopered Jardiniere. It still retains the original copper full height inner liner making it useful for indoor shrubs but also as a very decorative wine cooler or spirit decanter holder. Made by Hamilton of London, circa 1910. This is an antique with signs of use. Please study the images as these form part of the description and ask for additional photos if required to make your decision. We cannot guarantee the watertightness of the inner liner hence this beautiful object is sold purely as a decorative item.
