Description

Discover the timeless elegance of this James Coster Oak Longcase Clock, a beautifully proportioned clock that embodies classic craftsmanship. The plain oak case is both understated and refined, featuring a break-arched hood, long trunk door, and reeded columns with intricate brass capitals and bases. The 12-inch break-arched painted dial showcases an early design with exquisite gilt detailing on raised gesso in the arch and corners, complemented by subsidiary seconds and calendar dials. The original blued steel hands feature a delicate diamond pattern, adding to the charm and authenticity of this remarkable timepiece. Beneath the elegant exterior lies an 8-day, weight-driven movement, skillfully designed to strike the hours on a bell via a rack and snail striking system with precision and grace. A harmonious blend of form and function, this longcase clock is a testament to James Coster's legacy and craftsmanship.
