Description

A 19th-century stool set on a rich mahogany base and featuring a timeless and classic outline. Its a beautiful statement piece for a dressing table, a bedroom window bay, or as a flexible additional seat in a principal drawing room. The stool is defined by its traditional turned legs, which showcase the clean symmetry and understated craftsmanship of the Victorian era. The piece is in good condition overall. The original fabric seat shows some honest, age-appropriate signs of wear that add to its period charm, and the stool is ready for immediate use in the home.
