Description

Mid 1700's, Richard Ginori, Handpainted Porcelain Sugar Bowl, also known as Doccia Porcelain. This Porcelain Manufacturer near Florence in Italy was one of the most influential Porcelain Makers in Italy and the detail of painting on this bowl is testament of this. The leaf of the rose bud on top of the lid is missing and there is an almost invisible 1 mm chip on the rim of the bowl (pictured, but almost invisible). The bowl has a length of ca 11.5 cm, a width of ca 9 cm and a height including rose bud of ca 10.5 cm. Free shipping to the UK, the EU, the USA and Canada.
