Description

A good example of a walnut tabletop cabinet dating from the late 19th century. It was probably once a humidor but would suit a variety of uses. It is a simple elegant design with ebonised stringing and a triple divided front. The doors open to reveal two drawers with inset brass military style handles. The drawers and even the inside of the doors are beautifully veneered in a rich walnut. Each drawer is divided internally into various sections. The cabinet is in good condition for its age. The wood has developed a lovely rich patina and the interior is clean and tidy. There are a few small knocks and marks around the outside, general signs of age and use and a small shrinkage split to the back (see photo) but overall it displays well. It does not come with a key. It has been lightly cleaned and polished and is ready for use. The best description comes from the photos so please look at them all carefully and if you have any questions just ask.
