Description

A rare and charming candle stand dating from the early 18th Century, exhibiting a glorious glowing color and fine patina. The octagonal top features a molded edge, above a finely turned stem, and a hexagonal platform with three shaped down swept legs. It is highly unusual to find a candle stand from this period made of cherry wood. This lovely piece of English country furniture displays a fantastic untouched surface. In superb original condition having a small repair to one turned foot. Circa 1700.
