Description

Technical Description A 19th century Glass and Silver Claret Jug. It has a solid silver lid, cap and handle hallmarked for Birmingham 1878. The body has exceptional intaglio cutting which is among the most renowned types of decoration that came out of the Victorian period. Produced by the Stevens and Williams glass company located in Staffordshire, their recognisable cutting is testament to their high quality and individuality. The designers took their influence from the Ancient Greeks as the style is meant to emulate 'rock crystal' vessels from 100 BCE. Date Birmingham, England, 1878 Condition The silver is in excellent unrubbed condition, no chips, cracks or restoration to the glass which is also clean and clear internally.
