Description

A large pine storage cupboard dating from the early 20th Century. It has two panelled doors which open to a simple shelved interior. It has two small wooden knobs and comes with its original working key. It is a good quality piece and its narrow proportions make it very useful for a variety of purposes. It is in good condition and has a lovely warm colour. There are signs of age and use, some light marks and knocks but there are no major damages and it has a lovely patina. There have been some old repairs over the years but nothing untoward. It has suffered with worm in the past but we are satisfied that it is historic and it has been treated as a precaution. It hasn't affected the piece structurally and it still displays well. The best description comes from the photos so please look at them all carefully and if you have any questions just ask.
