Description

This exquisite antique 18th-century breakfast table showcases timeless elegance and superior craftsmanship. Made from fine mahogany, it features a practical tilt-top design, allowing for easy storage when not in use, making it as functional as it is stylish. The rectangular top is adorned with stunning ebony detailing and mahogany cross-banding, providing a sophisticated contrast that emphasises the table's magnificent grain and warm, rich colour. Standing on four gracefully curved sabre legs, the table is supported by its original brass casters, a testament to its quality and enduring construction. The refined proportions and subtle detailing make it a versatile piece suitable for both traditional and contemporary interiors. This table is not only of exceptional quality but also remains in good condition for its age, offering a perfect blend of historic charm and everyday usability. A beautiful and practical addition to any home or collection.
