Description

A wonderful antique Edwardian brass curtain pole or range pole with wall brackets dating from circa 1910. The pole has turned finials to each end which can be unscrewed in order to add curtain rings. The turned wall brackets have stylish circular back plates with screw holes so it can be fitted to a wall. Originally designed to hang on the wall above a range such as an AGA to dry towels and hang pots and pans but ideal to use as an antique curtain pole too. Construction: Brass Condition Report: Good condition. General wear, and marks and tarnishing commensurate with age. Dimensions: With of Pole Finial to Finial: 163cm Width of Pole without Finials: 143cm width of pole inside Brackets: 114cm Pole Diameter: 3cm Depth with Brackets: 20cm
