Description

We are delighted to offer this exquisite antique Edwardian 9ct gold aquamarine necklace made c.1900. Airy, light and revitalising, this necklace features a minimalistic yet stunning design. As some say, "simplicity is the ultimate sophistication" and upon seeing such pieces sometimes it is challenging to deny such a statement. Despite its intricate and delicate designs, the aquamarine is certainly not insignificant and poses a generous size and presence upon wearing, creating a perfect contrast and enhancing the stone's grandeur with the overall modest design. Upon wearing, the three sections move freely, further enhancing their liveliness and beauty with the gemstones glistening in many different angles and lighting. Distinguished in style and unapologetically antique, this necklace is ideal for the discerning antique jewellery lover and a conversation starter for the keen-eyed. A spectacular gift for someone special or for yourself - Aquamarine is known to be the birthstone for March. The unmarked as is common with articles of this period and as such we have tested it for 9ct gold. All of our jewellery comes with a complimentary hard shell gift box with a velv...
