Description

An oak hanging press cupboard of a fantastic colour and surface. Circa 1780 the cupboard boasts fluted quartered columns and a pair of shaped, paneled doors that open to reveal a hanging space inside. It rests on a base with five cock beaded functional drawers, paneled ends, and an oak planked back. The cupboard also features two linen shelves and wooden pegs, making it versatile and suitable for various uses. While the brassware has been replaced at a later date, the overall condition of the piece is excellent.
