Description

Valentine Thomas Garland British, (1845-1914) After the Show Oil on canvas, signed Image size: 28.5 inches x 18.5 inches Size including frame: 40.75 inches x 30.75 inches A wonderful animal painting of two show dogs by Valentine Thomas Garland. A small black and tan dog is depicted in the centre of the painting wearing a white ruff collar with a bell. Behind the seated dog to the right, a small tan Chihuahua is shown resting in the head of a marching band drum. To the left, a puppet can be seen hanging out of a dressing trunk, whilst a scabbard and pipe lie next to some playing cards on the floor. Further research has revealed that the painting may have originally been titled 'Two of a Company Waiting an Audience' which was exhibited at the Albert Hall Exhibition in 1883. Valentine Thomas Garland or Thomas Valentine Garland was born in Basingstoke in 1845 the son of the artist William Garland (1817-1882) and his wife Mary. He was named William Thomas at birth but went by the name of Thomas or Tom from an early age. By 1861, the family had moved to Winchester living at 27 Eastgate Street, later living at City Road in nearby Weeke. He was initially taught art by his ...
