William Kay BLACKLOCK (1872—1924) The artist is known to have died at Polperro and is buried there (registration district of Liskeard). He studied at the School of Art in Edinburgh, and at the Royal College of Art in London. In 1909 he married Ellen Eliza RICHARDSON (also known as "Nellie") who was also to become his model for a series of paintings from 1910-1917, and who was an artist in her own right, painting and exhibiting her work at the RA. The couple set up their first home together in Chelsea, London, but shortly thereafter moved on to Walberswick in Suffolk where there was an active artists' community working. W Kay Blacklock, as he signed his paintings, probably also painted in Holland as the subjects and titles of his paintin...
