Description

A late C19th carved mahogany armchair in the mid C18th George II Chippendale period style, together with a matching single chair. Finely carved and pierced interlaced ribbon splat backs with a central carved patera and a lambrequin tassel onto a gadroon carved 'shoe'. The shaped serpentine top rail with leaf scroll carved ends. The armchair having shaped out-swept arms with carved eagles-head terminals. The arms having achieved an aged surface and colour commensurate with age, use and purpose. Both chairs of bold scale and proportions, raised on carved cabriole forelegs with carved acanthus leaf and C-scroll decoration to the knees, onto claw-and-ball feet. The seats having drop-in pads with atmospherically worn period-style floral tapestry needlework covers. In excellent original condition having a rich period-style colour and patina to the superior grade of selected mahogany, with no damage or repairs. Faithfully and skilfully executed copies of important mid C18th mahogany chairs. Would perhaps work well as a pair of chairs to use with a desk or library table. H 40" W (across arms) 28" D 20" England, c.1880.
