Description

Antique late 19th-century Sitzen-dorf Dresden porcelain potpourri vases. This exquisite pair of Sitzen-dorf porcelain potpourri vases, crafted in Dresden in the late 19th century, features hand-painted intricate floral patterns and applied floral decorations. The delicately hand-modelled flowers, painted in pastel tones, add texture and visual appeal to these decorative pieces. Each vase is topped with an elaborate floral finial on its lid, which includes small holes, indicating their design as potpourri holders. The bases bear the Sitzen-dorf blue cross-hatch mark, confirming their authenticity and origin. Historical background: The Sitzen-dorf Porcelain Factory, founded in 1850 by Wilhelm Liebmann in Thuringia, Germany, became famous for its finely detailed porcelain inspired by Rococo and Baroque styles. Known for its intricate floral applications and ornate designs, Sitzen-dorf overcame challenges like financial hardships and rebuilding after a fire in 1858 to operate successfully for over a century. Pieces made before 1932 are especially prized by collectors, and Sitzen-dorf remains celebrated for its craftsmanship and decorative appeal. Dimensions: Height 24 cm Width 15 cm Depth 13 cm.
