Description

Here we have a rare carved black forest wood Tobacco Jar / casket in the shape of a monkey wearing a Fez with lovely glass eyes. The carved detail of the monkey is wonderful, and the jar boasts exceptional detail with finely carved fur and Fez. The monkey is sat with his head resting on his hand and he has a cigar in his other hand. The monkey has glass eyes which adds to the charm of this piece. As can be seen from the photographs this is a wonderful subject. The top section lifts to reveal a hollow for tobacco within equally it could be used to store trinkets. The jar is circa 1860 / 1880. The approximate MAXIMUM dimensions are: 22.5 cm high x 10 cm wide x 8.5 cm deep. CONDITION: From the photographs you can see that this is a lovely jar which are in lovely condition but there is a fine shrinkage line to the bottom of the front and a shrinkage line which runs top to bottom at the rear which can be viewed in the photographs. Please study photographs carefully as they form part of the description and condition, as what you view is exactly what you will receive. REF: black forest monkey tobacco jar
