Description

A striking and unusual large double wardrobe, in rich mahogany, featuring double hinged doors that open fully to reveal a spacious hanging rail within. The wardrobe showcases beautifully panelled doors, with a stunning combination of flame mahogany and the rare, sought-after amboyna, all framed with crossbanding and delicate boxwood string inlay, adding a touch of elegance and craftsmanship. The wardrobe is in good original condition, with a working lock and key. Notably, this piece can be easily flat-packed, breaking down into six manageable pieces, making it practical for transport and placement. A perfect blend of functionality and antique charm, this wardrobe would make a sophisticated addition to any home, offering both ample storage and timeless beauty. Circa 1760.
