Description

This exquisite Victorian-era rosewood drop leaf table is in excellent antique condition, showcasing the elegance and craftsmanship of the period. The table features two drop leaves that extend the top to 81.5cm, revealing stunning rosewood veneers with remarkable graining. The table is equipped with a single drawer with dividers and a double-depth drawer, both of which run smoothly and are constructed with dovetail joints. These drawers are adorned with turned bun handles, adding to the table's refined aesthetic. Supported by a tapered hexagonal column with a turned collar, the table stands on a quadrangular base with bun feet, ensuring stability and style. The table boasts a rich colour and patina, highlighting its excellent antique condition. This wonderful and elegant table would make a perfect lamp table in a living room or hall, adding a touch of Victorian charm to any space.
