Description

This is a superb antique Victorian coromandel and silver plated three decanter Betjemann's patent action tantalus, Circa 1870 in date. The bottles each with hobnail cut decoration and bulbous stoppers, one with a sterling silver collar annotated for Whisky. Skillfully crafted in coromandel with a stylish silver plated locking bar, stamped one side 'Betjemann's Patent, London, 10001, and a crown over "The Tantalus", on the other. It is fitted with a Betjemann's Bramah locking system, complete with original key. It is a very decorative high quality piece which is also very practical and would make a lovely gift. Condition: In excellent condition having been beautifully cleaned and wax polished in our workshops. Dimensions in cm: Height 18.5 cm x Width 23.5 cm x Depth 9.5 cm. Dimensions in inches: Height 7 inches x Width 9 inches x Depth 4 inches. Betjemann & Sons In 1812 George Betjemann started apprenticing as a cabinet maker with his uncle, Gilbert Slater at his premises on Carthusian Street, London. In 1834, George then joined his father-in-law, William Merrick's cabinet making business on Red Lion Street, Clerkenwell, London. George brought his sons, George William...
