Description

This is a spectacular late 18th century table made from solid walnut. The top is 2 plank and has the most amazing figuring throughout with elements of burr and strong grain. The planks are 3inch thick and have a stunning tactile feel to them from years of use. The base is pegged construction refectory design again made from walnut. One of the other designs I love is the circular pegged details between planks. Not seen this before. This is quite simply one of the best tables I have ever had and will work in a huge number of interiors. It is solid timber so you don't need to be precious about how you use it. It will stand the test of time. Height 75cm Length 241cm Depth 88cm
