Description

Oak refectory draw leaf dining table This Oak refectory draw leaf dining table was made circa 1920. I attribute this table to have been made in the workshops of Titchmarsh & Goodwin, who were the top of the tree when making this style of furniture. The company have been working for 100years and still trading today. This example would have been made in their early days of manufacturing. The solid oak dining table is versatile, as it can be used without the leaves pulled out, or with 1 or both leaves pulled to suit your dining arrangements. It comes into pieces to allow easy transportation too and around your home. This style of refectory dining table has been popular for 500 years, as the design and practicality are so good. The table is hard wearing and able to take the knocks of a modern-day family. Imagine enjoying ownership of this table whether for day to day use or special occasions. 245cms with both leaves extended 8ft 83.5cms deep 33ins 76cms high 36ins 153cms closed with leaves in 5ft All Measurements are as accurate as possible Delivery UK mainland FREE Other destinations please contact us, and we will get a quote.
