

SA1122401

19th Century Scottish Equestrian Oil Painting of a Horse Fair

Price

GBP 4,500

| USD $6,089 | EUR 5,265

Item Reference: SA1122401

Date of manufacture: 1870

Dimensions

Height = 65 cm (25.6")

Width = 80 cm (31.5")

Description

19th-century Horsefair Grassmarket Edinburgh Scotland Follower of Rosa Bonheur, a Scottish artist, oil on canvas
19th-Century Horse Fair in Grassmarket, Edinburgh, Scotland: A Historical, Economic, and Artistic Legacy
Stylized interiors are for presentation purposes and intended to inspire. Final layout may vary
The 19th-century horse fair in the Grassmarket of Edinburgh, Scotland, stands as a remarkable testament to a bygone era when horses were the lifeblood of urban commerce and social gatherings. This traditional Edinburgh horse fair not only served as a crucial hub for trade and economic exchange but also became an enduring symbol of Scottish cultural heritage. The event's legacy lives on in art, local traditions, and even in the memorabilia sought after by collectors today. Below is an in-depth exploration of this historic event presented as an ordered list that covers every facet of its significance. A Follower of Rosa Bonheur and the Artistic Inspiration 1.1 Rosa Bonheur's Influence on Scottish Art: The 19th-century horse fair at Grassmarket has long inspired artists, much like the celebrated French painter Rosa Bonheur, known for her lifelike depictions of horses...

Seller Details

Antiques Decorative (Sussex)

East Sussex United Kingdom By appointment only.

Tel: 07565 761917

International Tel: +44 7565 761917