Description

A Chinese Porcelain Blue and White Dish with Five-Clawed Dragon Having Chenghua Mark To Base Porcelain painted with underglaze cobalt blue. The central motif is a stylized dragon, a common and powerful symbol. The dragon's dynamic pose and the depiction of waves suggest a theme of power over the waters. The detailed depiction of waves is a typical motif found in Ming ceramics, often symbolising the ocean or representing imperial power over the waters. The marks to base reads: "Made in the (Chenghua) year of the Great Ming(Dynasty)." Diameter 21cm approx. Provenance: Brought in Tokyo. UK Private Collection.
