Description

A good and large Pair of most decorative lamps. The very weighty bases would indicate that these would originally have been oil Lamps and converted to electricity in the Edwardian period, say around 1900. No photographic image of this outstanding pair of Lamps could do them justice. They remain in original uncleaned condition having come straight from a property. These lamps would suit a variety of rooms and certainly make a statement and enhance the decor of a fine home. Prior to delivery each would be rewired and PAT tested to conform with modern safety regulations. For further decorative items, please view our stock page here.
