Description

Mid 19th Century or perhaps even earlier, in the latter part of the Georgian era, this rare sword stick is covered with leather cloth, it has an etched Toledo blade and a release button that when the blade is drawn quillons spring out. The etchings on the blade and quillons are worn, but the quality of the workmanship is still discernible, the end on the handle has a brass cap and the stick ends in a brass and steel ferrule. Size: Length - 39" (99cm) Blade Length - 27" (69cm)
