Description

A very good early 18thc oak "joined" table...it is also possible it could have been a large stool, but makes a very useful "lamp" table...it is constructed in the same way as the early joint stools of the period, with pegging and the top has the early feature of a large thumbnail moulding...quite worn in places. The table has a very good colour and shows adze and saw marks, which are always nice to see....early label underneath the seat for Simkins Depository - Colchester. English. C1710-20
