Description

A beautifully preserved 19th-century oak artist's studio easel stamped by the renowned London colourmen Lechertier & Barbe. Its substantial H-frame design and classic utilitarian form make it a beautiful statement piece for displaying a large oil painting, a vintage mirror, or as a focal point in a creative studio or open-plan living space. The easel is defined by its robust, solid oak construction and its original, fully functional mechanical adjustable system. This mechanism allows the heavy canvas ledge to raise, lower, and tilt smoothly, highlighting the superb Victorian engineering and industrial quality that made Lechertier & Barbe a preferred supplier to high-profile period artists. The piece is in original condition. It has been lightly cleaned, retains its wonderful authentic studio character, and is ready for immediate use in the home.
