Description

An impressive vintage halo ring featuring a large purple corundum, likely synthetic, mounted in solid nine-carat gold and encircled in a halo of white pastes. The main stone has slight colour changing properties, at times appearing more pinkish-purple, at others more blue-purple. The ring is beautifully made, with a lovely ornate basket setting which can be seen from the side when it's worn, really elevating the look of the piece to something extra special. SIZE: Approximately P and a half (UK), 8 (US). The ring face is approx 2 x 1.8cm and it sits around 1cm above the finger. WEIGHT: 7.2g. MATERIALS: 375 nine-carat gold. HALLMARKS/STAMPS: Marked 9C. CONDITION: In excellent vintage condition. ERA: Estimated 1940s.
