Description

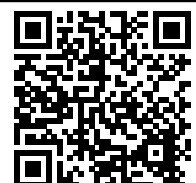

An early 19th-century North Wales oak dresser. The upper section features a moulded cornice and a boarded rack back with fitted shelves. The base includes three drawers, two of which can be secured with a latch inside the cupboards. Below, there are four central drawers—three of which are decorative dummy drawers—all fitted with brass drop handles. Flanking the drawers are twin cupboards, providing additional storage. The dresser stands on sturdy stile feet and conveniently separates into two sections for easy transport. Item Ref; M-5868A .

DIMENSIONS: Height - 181cm / Width - 146cm / Depth - 46cm / Seat Height - 87.5cm . CONDITION REPORT: In good antique condition overall, with signs of age and character. There is surface wear, including age-related marks and scratches throughout. The top was historically shortened but has been reinstated. The rack shows some splitting, and there is staining to the surface. There is evidence of past woodworm, though it has long since gone and has been treated as a precaution. One of the drawer interiors has a hole. Despite these signs of age, the dresser remains in great condition overall. Our experienced carpenter meticulously inspects,...
