Description

Small vanity-bags - 'chanteh' in Persian - of the Shahsevan nomads are rare. This charming little bag, woven circa 1880-1900, has been in our collection for many years and it's now time for a Spring clean! Although we are sad to see it go, it has been an enjoyable part of our collection and we feel it is time to move it on to someone who will treasure it, as we did and of course, as the nomads did themselves. The chanteh is woven in soumak technique and has a deep-blue ground containing two central 'birds-heads' lozenges surrounded by a multitude of tiny quincunx. The back is particularly visual with its three vertical 'tree' shapes in very stylised form. It is in very good original condition with no restoration whatsoever. Size: 20 cm (8") square.
