Description

This small and delightful 18th Century Bilston * enamel patch box dates circa 1780. The white pull-off cover charmingly painted with a classical scene and the words "A Mother's Gift". The base a pale blue enamel. Dimensions: Diameter 2cm / 0.6 inches. Height: 1.5cm / 0.4 inches. Condition: In good condition for this type of object. Some grazing on the lid, commensurate with age. No loss of enamel. Base in very good condition, the bases of these boxes are very often chipped. * By the early 18th Century the town of Bilston, on the southern edge of Wolverhampton, was already established as a metal-working centre. The next step for these manufacturers of artefacts such as buckles, boxes and toy was get ahead of their competitors by decorating them. So they turned to enamels. The technique of enamelling is applying heat to a mixture of silica, soda, potassium silicates and lead oxide, the enameller produced a paste which could be painted on to metal surfaces. Different colours could be created by introducing various metallic oxides into the mixes. Enamellers often collected broken glasses from pubs and inns to grind them into the paste, but there were already, by the mid-...
