Description

The Eterna Matic KonTiki holds historical significance in the world of wristwatches. The KonTiki collection is inspired by the famous Kon-Tiki expedition led by Norwegian explorer Thor Heyerdahl in 1947. The expedition involved a journey across the Pacific Ocean on a balsa wood raft named Kon-Tiki, with the goal of demonstrating that ancient civilizations could have traveled across oceans using primitive means. Eterna, the Swiss watchmaker, created the KonTiki line of watches to commemorate this remarkable feat of exploration. These watches are designed to embody the spirit of adventure, resilience, and discovery associated with the Kon-Tiki expedition. The watches often feature robust construction, water resistance, and distinctive design elements that pay homage to the nautical theme. The Eterna Matic KonTiki watches typically emphasize durability and reliability, making them suitable for both everyday wear and more demanding outdoor activities. From the research we've conducted, we gathered that this is a first generation Super-KonTiki and based on the serial number it is anticipated that the watch was produced in 1962. The watch features a 37mm stainless steel case,...
