Description

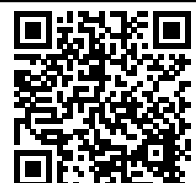

silver wine tasters George V1 A set of four George VI wine tasters London, dated 1938, makers J W & F Thomas of plain circular planished design with twin scroll handles and feature hallmarks diameter 9cm., weight approx. 7.3oz IN very good condition with only minor signs of age and use as to be expected apologies for any reflections in photography A wine taster is a small shallow circular bowl/dish used by vintners and wine tastes to judge the colour, clarity, and taste of wine. early examples date from the mid 17th century. They were made extensively through the Georgian and Victorian periods and are still made today Early examples were often made with two opposing handles, like the ones for sale here but later Georgian and Victorian versions only had one flat horizontal handle supported by a vertical ring so that the index finger and thumb could be used.
