Description

John Charles Maggs British, (1819-1896) Caught in a Snowstorm Oil on canvas, signed Image size: 10 inches x 16.75 inches Size including frame: 14.5 inches x 21.25 inches An atmospheric winter coaching scene featuring a coach and horses outside an inn by John Charles Maggs. A stagecoach can be seen having stopped outside an inn during a snow storm. As the coachmen survey the darkening skies, a team of fresh horses is shown waiting in the nearby stables. John Maggs was born James Charles Maggs on 17 September, 1819 in Bow, East London to James Charles Maggs senior and Jane Maggs. His father was an artist and furniture japanner who was originally from Somerset but found work in London. By 1823, the family had moved back to Somerset where they lived at Westgate Street in Bath. He most likely received his initial art training from his father before studying abroad in Italy for 2 years. On his return to Bath, he established himself as an artist and began specialising in coaching scenes. On 22 June, 1852 he married Eliza Gardner at Freshford Parish Church. The couple initially lived at 5 Larkhall Place in Bath before moving to 11 Belvedere West. The couple had 4 children to...
