Description

An antique Pembroke mahogany sofa table, circa 1820. A refined example of Georgian craftsmanship, featuring a well-figured mahogany top with drop leaves, allowing for a versatile footprint. The turned central column is elegantly supported by four swept legs, each terminating in brass claw casters for ease of movement. A drawer at each end provides additional storage, while the rich patina enhances its timeless character. A highly functional and decorative piece, ideal for use as a writing or occasional table.
