Description

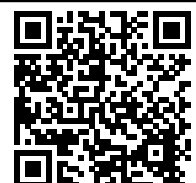

Oil painting by ROLAND BATCHELOR (BRITISH, 1889-1990) Titled: Contentment signed 'R. Batchelor' This rare medium by Roland Batchelor being oil on canvas rather than watercolour measures 46 x 36 cm. (18 1/8 x 14 1/8 in.) Currently unframed Roland Batchelor Exhibited at London, National Society, The Royal Institute Galleries Bernard William Roland Batchelor, RWS (1889-1990) Roland Batchelor's main subjects were focused on ordinary French life and were created with a warmth and focused insight. Many of his works had similarities to French comedies. His works were influenced by two of his favourite painters, Daumier, as well as Toulouse-Lautrec. Roland Batchelor was born in Chelsea on 16 October 1889. He painted from a young age, and established his focused genre after a school trip to France. In Edwardian times he attended painting classes given by Punch artist George Morrow at the Putney School of Art; his comic contributions to the Civil Service Opinion were clearly influenced by Morrow's teaching. After serving in France and Italy during the First World War, he studied under Harry Watson at the Regent Street Polytechnic; at the same time, he discovered a volume ...
