Description

A lovely Art Deco desk calendar in a silver plated frame on an ebonised wooden base. It has a full set of date and week cards. There are two knobs on the top of the calendar that turn a screen inside that moves a red line marker across the days. It's in good condition for its age. The frame has some small dents and marks here and there and some areas of tarnishing where the plating has worn slightly but nothing detrimental and the wooden base is in good order. It has been lightly cleaned and polished and displays well. The best description comes from the photos so please look at them all carefully and if you have any questions just ask.
