Description

This charming set of six Victorian-era dining chairs exudes timeless elegance and showcases solid craftsmanship. Each chair features a backrest with a gracefully curved top rail adorned with intricate carved details at both ends, and a beautifully carved central rail. The legs are skilfully turned and tapered at the front, complemented by splayed legs at the back, ensuring both style and stability. The seats are upholstered in a classic green striped fabric, adding a touch of traditional charm. While there are some minor signs of wear—such as small marks and a hole on one seat as seen in the pictures—the upholstery can be refreshed or replaced to suit individual tastes and preferences. The rosewood frames display a rich, warm patina and coloration, embodying the natural character of antique furniture. Despite the imperfections inherent in vintage pieces, this set is beautifully crafted and offers a seamless blend of historical beauty and functional utility, making it a superb choice for enhancing any dining space.
