Description

This is a stunning 19th century Japanese Ginbari Cloisonne vase in excellent condition dating from around 1900. Cloisonne is a very skilled onlaid glass enamel technique with tiny brass wires soldered to the metal body of the vase and different coloured glass enamels used to create the design. The glass work to this fine example is in perfect condition and the fine detail is quite exquisite. The bold emerald green is quite a rare colour seldom used in these vases and the vase has a wonderful repeat chased design beneath the glass with palm trees to the reverse. It is in excellent condition with only a tiny indentation to the silver base rim as photographed. A very smart and decorative vase in a rare colour. This measures 15 cms high and is 8 cms in diameter. UK insured delivery is £10
