SoldItem Reference: SA1136066*Date of manufacture: 19th Century

Description

An unusually small fusee wall clock by this very well known Clockmaker. The single fusee movement is of 8 day duration and features blued steel hands to the rare 8 inch painted dial. The dial signed Clerke, 1 Royal Exchange, London. The small case at only 13 inches in height and made from solid and veneered oak. The movement and pendulum can be accessed via a lockable door to the base and a further latched door to the side. The brass bezel features a lock to the side. A rare and small wall clock by this maker of some fine clocks and watches. C.1855 Note. It's possible this clock may have been made for an office due to its small size and choice of oak for the case.
