Description

A mid 19thC watercolour painting by James H Hulse (active c1840-1851). This artist is known for landscapes of large English country houses but this landscape (along with the pair separately listed) is more likely of a continental landscape scene while travelling, possibly Germany, Eastern France or Switzerland. The painting is signed bottom left. The painting depicts a countryside scene of a bridge over a gorge, with a donkey being ridden, against a stunning backdrop of high snowy mountains and a bright wide sky. The whole effect is inspiring, yet simple and gentle. The painting is nicely framed in a silver-gold frame, behind glass. Excellent condition and colour. Image dimension 27.5cmWx13.5cmH.
