Description

We are delighted to offer this lovely antique Victorian 14ct gold diamond and pearl necklace made c.1900. This pendant features such a lovely & regal design with an almost flower like shape, each petal finely curved and mounted intricately with fine seed pearls. Due to its versatile size and overall white/gold tone, this pendant is ideal to wear with a wide variety of clothes and styles. We will include a complimentary modern 9ct gold chain as photographed, allowing for a vast array of combinations. The overall proportions of the pendant are beautiful and embraces the intricate goldsmithing of the Victorian era with delicate goldwork and mounting. Overall, a fine and distinguished piece of Victorian jewellery, ideal as a special gift or an indulgent personal addition. This pendant would most certainly be a splendid addition for the discerning antique jewellery lover and an instant conversation starter upon wearing. Perfect as a standalone accessory to accentuate your outfit or among other jewellery. The reverse side of the brooch has a pin (along with a safety chain) which allows it to be worn with jumpers, jackets or coats. It is also marked underneath the clasp for ...
