Description

This antique 19th century fold-over tea table is a fine example of traditional craftsmanship, made from rich mahogany and offering both elegance and functionality. The piece features a beautifully figured top with a fold-over design, allowing it to serve as a compact console when closed and a spacious tea table when opened. Stood on a classic pillar base with four gracefully curved sabre legs, it is finished with decorative brass casters, adding a refined touch and ease of movement. The mahogany showcases a stunning colour with a gorgeous grain running throughout, giving the table a warm and inviting presence. Of good quality and in solid condition, this tea table is a versatile and timeless addition to any period or contemporary interior, ideal for use in a living room, hallway, or as a feature piece in a dining space.
