Description

A stunning example of 19th-century craftsmanship, this Victorian dome-top jewellery box, dating to circa 1880, is beautifully crafted from richly figured burr walnut, showcasing the elegant swirls and depth of grain that make this timber so sought after. The curved lid lends a graceful silhouette, enhanced by a flush inlaid brass handle—a refined detail that complements the box's understated opulence. Inside, you'll find a neatly fitted jewellery tray, perfect for organising rings, brooches, or smaller keepsakes, with additional storage below for larger items. This piece also benefits from a fully functioning lock and original key, offering both security and authenticity. Whether as a collector's item or a charming addition to a dressing table, this antique jewellery box combines timeless elegance with practical storage. Materials: Burr walnut & brass Age: c.1880 Size: Length: 22cm Width: 15cm Height: 10.5cm
