Description

This beautiful set of Venetian lattico glass is amazing. It has a jewel like quality which is very pleasing to the eye. It has an intricate and fine ribboned and platted design that runs throughout each piece in a continuous pattern with a solid strand of vivid turquoise blue alternated with a delicate opaque white which is divided into fine strands forming a ribbon of circles with a stunning high luster rose gold boarder. It is rare to find a complete set which comprises an elegant ewer or claret jug which stands on a flared foot with raised moulded rings. The body has a bulbous form with a tall slender neck which broadens into a shaped pouring spout from which the elegant curved and raised handle connects and returns onto the body with an impressive lion's head mask. The ewer includes its original stand and a magnificent pair of large goblets which have a wonderful decorative hollow stem which is decorated again with lion's head masks which are connected with a foliate wreath and there is a beaded boarder above and below. Each piece has been hand blown with great skill and is finished on the underside with a snapped of pontil which is normal for Venetian glass of this p...
